SWELTERING SENATORS ARE STILL ARGUING

Opponents Are Believed to See Futility of Their Losing Fight on Naval Treaty

BUT ONE RESERVATION

By Associated Press
WASHINGTON, July 20.

Sweltering in the hottest weather of years here Senate leaders today determined to seek ratification of the London naval treaty by tomorrow night or Tuesday.

The spirited band of opponents gained a day of rest placing them in a position to resume the attack tomorrow but they see the futility of a losing fight and apparently are ready to let the treaty go through.

The dozen or more reservations must be disposed of before a vote on ratification is in order but treaty advocates asserted today there would be voted down almost without exception.

Only one reservation, that by Senator Norris, Republican, Nebraska, is due for acceptance. This reservation provides that in ratifying the treaty the Senate gives no approval whatever to any secret agreement or understandings which may exist.

POLICE ARREST NINE ALLEGED GAMBLERS SUNDAY

Nine men were arrested by City and County officers early Sunday morning when the squad of officers under the leadership of Captain Charles Malik of the city police, and William Walker, assistant county detective, visited the establishment of Vincent Cincinnatti on West Main street. Cincinnatti was charged with operating a gambling house while the remaining eight men were arrested as inmates of a gambling house according to the arresting officers.

The officers struck at 2:15 a. m. Sunday while the men were in the midst of a card game, according to the officers. All the men were taken to the city police station where they posted bond for a hearing before Mayor Luther Crawford, in police court today.

Cincinnatti posted a $50 cash bond while the inmates were released after paying $10 each.

The men arrested gave their names as Frank Marnilo, Frank Watson, Mike Spankil, Harry Brown, C. D. Miller, Ernest Marnelli, Jack Magee, Jack Berittey and Vincent Cincinnatti.

The raid was staged by Captain Charles Malik, Privates James Jones and O. Shaw of the city police, and Assistant County Detective William Walker of the county office.

lights adjusted by an accredited state headlight service station and return their cards to the patrol. In event of failure to return the cards prosecution will follow according to announcement made last night by the patrol.

Carl J. Fowler of Elmira, N. Y., was stopped by Corporal Dan Augustine of the Washington, Pa., sub station. He was unable to satisfy the patrolman as to the ownership of the automobile he was driving and he was taken into custody for questioning. It developed that the machine was stolen and a wire from Elmira yesterday advised the Uniontown detail that an officer would leave there early this week for Uniontown to take Fowler back to New York state.

The visits of the flying squadron are made to various counties throughout the district and have been a big help to the various sub stations in their efforts to keep down the infractions of the law.

STANDARD OIL BUYS WAVERLY

Absorption Will Give Company Many Additional Service Stations and New Dealers

Announcement has just been made of the purchase by the Standard Oil Company of Pennsylvania of the retail marketing facilities of the Waverly Oil Works Company. The latter concern is well known to local motorists as a marketer of high grade petroleum products for the last 50 years, having been established in 1880.

The absorption of this company with its highly developed marketing facilities will give the Standard Oil Company of Pennsylvania some thirty-five additional service stations and approximately 400 new dealers for the dispensing of "Standard" products to motorists in Western Pennsylvania.

According to W. E. Black, manager of the Pittsburgh Branch of the Standard Oil Company of Pennsylvania, the fast growing popularity of "Standard" products in this state has necessitated greatly increased facilities immediately to meet the demand. The purchase of the retail outlets of the Waverly Oil Works Company will more than double the number of "Standard" service stations in Pittsburgh and surrounding territory and will give greatly improved facilities to users of "Standard" products as fast as these stations can be changed over and improvements made where necessary. The acquisition of these Waverly stations, together with the "Standard" stations already built or planned for building this year will give the Standard Oil Company of Pennsylvania close to 100 service stations in the Pittsburgh Branch by 1931, a remarkable development considering the fact that this company has been in Western Pennsylvania for barely a year.

The recent opening of the Tuscarora Pipe Line through which gasoline is pumped from the refineries of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey at Bayway, N. J., to the new terminal in Western Pennsylvania at Midland, will enable the Pennsylvania company to meet without difficulty, the increased demand for "Standard" products which is expected to develop from the acquisition of thousands of former users of Waverly gasoline.

A new "Standard" bulk plant was opened in Pittsburgh recently with a tankage capacity of approximately five million gallons and gasoline is brought by barge from the Midland terminal to this plant. In preparation for the taking over of the Waverly facilities, four tows of 600,000 gallons each of gasoline were brought from Midland to Pittsburgh this week. The Standard Oil Company of Pennsylvania acquires 35 additional trucks and tank wagons from the Waverly Oil Works Company for the delivery of this gasoline to its retail outlets.

Additional office space has been taken by the Standard Oil Company of Pennsylvania in the Clark Building to take care of its increased personnel as former employes of the Waverly Oil Works Company will be added in large part to the Standard Oil Company of Pennsylvania payroll.

POSTAL WORKERS

and expressed the hope that he would continue as head of the powerful postal committee of the House.

Edward J. Gainer, president of the National Association of Letter Carriers, and C. P. Franciscus, president of the national association of Post Office Clerks, were the two national heads of postal workers in attendance. John J. Grogan of Wheeling, one of the trustees of group insurance, and Harry Kinsley of Pittsburgh, state vice president of the Pennsylvania Letter Carriers, spoke in behalf of the postal workers organizations.

S. Ray Shelby, member of the Pennsylvania Public Service Commission, paid tribute to Mr. Kendall's service in Congress while Hon. Adam Wynnt of Greensburg, congressman from Westmoreland county, spoke in eulogy of the work of his colleague in Congress.

Speakers also paid high compliment to the committee of the Uniontown workers who conceived and so splendidly carried out the multitudinous details of an event of outstanding importance.

Mr. Gainer stressed economic conditions in the country and the need of government taking the lead in shortening the hours of labor of its employes. Kendall's efforts in this line, he said, has made his name a household name in the great national family of postal employes. Mr. Franciscus spoke in like vein, stressing the importance of the shortened week as a means of aiding unemployment and declaring that the next step would be a 40 hour week. He predicted that the 44 hour week would be operative before the Christmas holidays. He paid high tribute to Mr. Kendall's "loyalty to the postal service." Mr. Grogan touched upon the extent of the postal service and the manner in which the inviolability of the mails is sustained, spoke of the need of united effort and praised Mr. Kendall's untiring efforts. Mr. Kinsley brought greetings and congratulations from the state organization and emphasized the value of concerted effort and organization.

Mr. Shelby paid his tribute to Mr. Kendall as "a real congressman from this district," who represents "everybody from the district" not only in postal matters but in every other form of congressional service and "in doing honor to Kendall you do honor to yourselves."

Mr. Kendall was overwhelmed at the magnitude and warmth of the tribute. He detailed the work of the House committee on post roads and post offices and pointed but that appropriations of $3,000,000 a day are necessary to maintain the postal service in all its branches, a greater cost than that of maintaining the army and navy combined. He paid high tribute to the loyalty and fidelity of the great army of postal workers and pledged his continued support of their interests. He also paid a high tribute to Mr. Shelby. "To him more than any other man," said Mr. Kendall, "I am indebted for support, suggestion and faithfulness. He has worked to give this county the best postal service possible and he is largely responsible for the great improvement in the postal service in the county."

Address of welcome to the visitors was made by Walter P. Schenck, secretary of the Uniontown Chamber of Commerce, who spoke briefly of the importance of the occasion and of the rare privilege and honor conferred upon the Uniontown district by the splendid attendance in testimonial to Mr. Kendall. O. LeRoy Morris, a member of the Uniontown post office staff, presided most happily as toastmaster, introducing the various speakers in most delightful fashion. During the evening he introduced the members of the committee responsible for the successful affair and as each arose they were greeted with resounding applause. The committee members were Miss Harriet M. Ioks, Miss Jessie McDowell, Frank M. Bower, Bowman Roth, Mahlon Recknor, Harry Van Swearingen, Harry Williams, Bowman Roth, George Green, James H. Hess, H. O. Shockey and Isaac Bryte. Toastmaster Morris also paid tribute to the co-operation of Postmaster Ghrist.

Practically every post office in Fayette and Somerset counties were represented. The Pittsburgh office sent a delegation of 35 in a special chartered bus while there was many representatives from adjoining counties.

During the evening music was furnished by a special orchestra, group singing was directed by Fred T. Miller, Earl Williams, nationally known vaudeville entertainer, delighted with mandolin and banjo numbers and David Martin pleased with a violin solo, with Miss Lurline Williams as accompanist.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS BAND WILL PLAY CONCERT TONIGHT

The Uniontown Public School Band will give a free open air concert this evening at 8 p. m. in the stadium at Hustead Field. This concert is the last one to be given by the band until after school begins again in the fall. During the last five weeks, the band has been invited to go on several of the neighboring towns, and their last appearance was at Shady Grove park on Saturday night, where they gave a concert. The members of the band have been very faithful in attendance, and they have really worked up a wonderful spirit of cooperation. Several of the members of the band have repeatedly refused to accompany their parents on jaunts out of town, on days when the band was to perform, because, as they said: "The band can't play, if we aren't in our proper places." One youngster even sacrificed a trip to Pittsburgh to see a ball game, because he said he was expected at band rehearsal, and couldn't miss.

The program to be played tonight, under the direction of J. Harold Rudy, is as follows:

Star Spangled Banner—Keys.

"Summit," March—Bennett.

Trumpet solo, "The Shepherd's Dream," Taylor—Played by John Campbell, with band accompaniment.

Overture, "Determination"—Hayes.

"Mister Joe," Characteristic—Bennett.

INTERMISSION

MASONTOWN BOY'S MARKSMANSHIP IS HIGHLY PRAISED

FORT WASHINGTON, Md., July 18.

Louis Janoff of 29 South Main street, Masontown, isn't very large in stature, in fact as he stepped down on the rifle range here yesterday the rifle looked almost as large as himself. He is a member of Company K of the C. M. T. C., and is a basic or first year man.

When the boys shoot the 200 yard range with Army rifles they are coached by an enlisted man of the regular personnel of the Post and have officers standing right behind to see that they handle their pieces in proper shape. Because of his size Louis was closely watched. The Army rifle is no plaything for candidates much larger than he is.

Prone on the ground he sighted his rifle and fired. The first shot was a bull's eye. His next also entered the chamed center and a third soon followed. That time he couldn't resist turning his head and smiling serenely at the scorer. In rapid succession he plied up his score, smiling engagingly each time he hit the mark. By the time he had fired five shots the officer was turning his attention elsewhere, confident that Louis could shoot.

He could and did. His final score was 71 out of a possible 75.
